

Therese's career in government focuses on the intersection of small business and the law with a specialty in federal contracting. She recently received a political appointment in the Biden Administration and serves as Deputy Associate Administrator for the Office of Capital Access at the U.S. Small Business Administration. She previously served as Senior Counsel for the Senate Small Business & Entrepreneurship Committee for Chair Ben Cardin of Maryland. During the COVID-19 pandemic, she facilitated a trillion dollars to our nation's small businesses in forgivable loans, low-interest loans, grants, debt-relief, and technical assistance.

Before her work in government, Therese launched and sold Viking Yogurt across the United States using SBA's tools. She was a certified women owned and Hispanic-owned WBE / MBE.

Therese pursued a liberal arts education. She holds a BA in Art History from Duke University (2002), MLitt in Art History from the University of St. Andrews (2004), and a JD from Harvard Law School (2008).
